PwC named a leader in new ALM Intelligence* Healthcare Cybersecurity report

ALM Intelligence, the leading consulting research and advisory firm, has rated PwC as an advancing ALM Intelligence Vanguard Leader in a new report titled 'Consulting to Public and Private Healthcare 2015: Cybersecurity.'

In the report, ALM Intelligence states that "PwC brings very strong and greater strategic depth to healthcare (HC) cybersecurity capabilities than its competitive peers, earning among the highest capability ratings across the spectrum of evaluation criteria in this assessment."

Joe Greene, Principal, said: "We are pleased to have been rated by ALM Intelligence as an 'advancing Vanguard,' in its report looking at the providers of cybersecurity services in the healthcare field. We are especially pleased that they recognised our global commitment to the healthcare sectors as evidenced by our ongoing investments in cybersecurity and information risk technology assets to enable HC cybersecurity strategies, process, regulatory compliance, and IT and data management."

ALM Intelligence goes on to say "PwC brings HC organisations well-developed proprietary tools and methods, accelerators, cyberthreat intelligence, and distinct services for public sector and private HC organisations alike. The firm's utmost priority for its clients' capability expansion in 2015 is cybersecurity, supported by its global delivery team of more than 2,100 employees, including former federal and international law enforcement professionals, and extensive certifications that support pragmatic people, process and technology solutions, including HITRUST for the HC industry."
