

Las Vegas Sands Affirms Commitment to Marina Bay Sands Development in Singapore

LAS VEGAS, Nov. 7 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Las Vegas Sands Corp. announced today that senior executives from the company met this week with Singapore Government officials amid their continuing collaboration to facilitate the completion of the Marina Bay Sands integrated resort development (MBS) in Singapore.

The meetings covered a range of subjects, such as MBS' rapid pace of construction as its hotel towers approach the 18th floor and the strong response to MBS' joint marketing efforts with the Singapore Tourism Board to bring more conventions, exhibitions, and corporate meetings to Singapore.

Sheldon G. Adelson, chairman and chief executive officer of Las Vegas Sands Corp. said, "When we were selected to develop an Integrated Resort at Marina Bay, we made a commitment to the Singapore Government and the people of Singapore. In light of recent turmoil in the global markets, I felt the need to personally reaffirm our commitment to the success of Marina Bay Sands. I am pleased to say that the Singapore Government's support of our project remains strong."

The company also said the Casino Regulatory Authority of Singapore (CRA) has informed Marina Bay Sands™, following its submission, that its proposed casino floor plan complies with the CRA's requirements for casino layout. As submitted, this floor plan would permit MBS to feature up to 1,000 gaming tables. The layout of MBS' final casino floor plan as well as other casino matters will be subject to final approval from CRA when the company applies for a casino license next year.

Mr. Adelson noted, "We expect that large crowds will be attracted to Singapore by the wide variety of entertainment options at Marina Bay Sands. The acceptance of our proposed casino layout by the Casino Regulatory Authority gives us the flexibility to increase our original table count of 600 to as much as 1,000 to meet demand. This represents a significant milestone as we move aggressively towards our opening."

MBS is further encouraged by the strong interest from Singaporean job-seekers in its joint recruitment initiative with the National Trades Union Congress' Employment and Employability Institute and the Singapore Workforce Development Agency, which to date has elicited more than 10,000 responses.

"The overwhelming response signals the great interest in Marina Bay Sands as we strive to maximize job opportunities for Singaporeans," said George Tanasijevich, MBS vice president of Singapore development / general manager.
