

Three projects in India are helping to lift hundreds out of poverty: the latest installment of Top Stories on CNHIndustrial.com

Shriya is 10 years old and lives with her mother and grandmother in Noida, India. She has ambitions to become a doctor. Two years ago, this may have seemed an impossible dream. Her school was struggling with low attendance, a high dropout rate and few resources in a catchment area where poverty is a significant problem. But since the advent of an education project supported by CNH Industrial, Shriya and her fellow students are now facing a brighter future giving her a real chance of realizing her ambitions. Read about how this is being achieved and our other community initiatives in India in the latest installment on CNHIndustrial.com's Top Stories: cnhindustrial.com/Indiaprojects

CNH Industrial (NYSE: CNHI / MI: CNHI) has forged relationships with a wide range of local communities around the world – from the affluent and developed to the deprived and underprivileged where there is only a basic level of healthcare and education. The Company strongly believes in order to make a positive and long-standing contribution to these communities, it is vital to fully understand the individual needs.

Through constant dialogue and the use of shared resources, the Company and its brands have been closely involved in three initiatives in India – an education project in Noida, Uttar Pradesh, and training programs in Rajasthan and Karnataka.

This latest installment of Top Stories looks at how CNH Industrial is extending its sustainability program through community initiatives that improve the lives of disadvantaged children and unemployed youth and achieve more than would have been possible with funding alone.
