

NEXPRO, a new range of lubricants, now available for CASE construction equipment in Russia

Moscow, 17 December 2018

CASE Construction Equipment, a leading global manufacturer of construction equipment, today introduced the second line of spare parts under the new NEXPRO brand for the Russian market. The new line is designed for post-warranty construction equipment fleets. The product line includes a wide range of spare parts and consumables. NEXPRO lubricants are the first products of this line-up to be offered in Russia.

The NEXPRO line of lubricants is designed specifically for ageing construction equipment that is past warranty limit, and includes eight state-of-the-industry types of oil – engine, gear, hydraulic. These are universal – for all the generations of CASE equipment.

The development of the NEXPRO line of lubricants took the specific operating conditions of the machinery in Russia into account: rapid temperature changes, instability of fuel quality, high dust content and heavy-duty operations. The oil in this series exhibits enhanced protective properties and meets the most stringent international standards.

Mikhail Murakhovskiy, Parts and Service Business Director, CNH Industrial Russia, noted: "There was a need for a range of lubricants specially developed for construction machines. By ensuring vehicles have better performance and longer life cycles, and by benefitting all the vehicles in the park. The product line is surely going to be a winner in the aftermarket."

The NEXPRO line of lubricants is commercially available at all authorised CASE dealerships in Russia and Belarus as of December 2018.
