Outlook for 2017

“Q1 2017 numbers combined with a strong medium term pipeline of both domestic and foreign issuers, suggest that London is well placed to continue as Europe’s premier exchange as the UK negotiates its exit from the EU. Issuers will continue to be attracted to London by the liquidity of the financial markets, the depth and breadth of the investor base and the regulatory and business framework.”

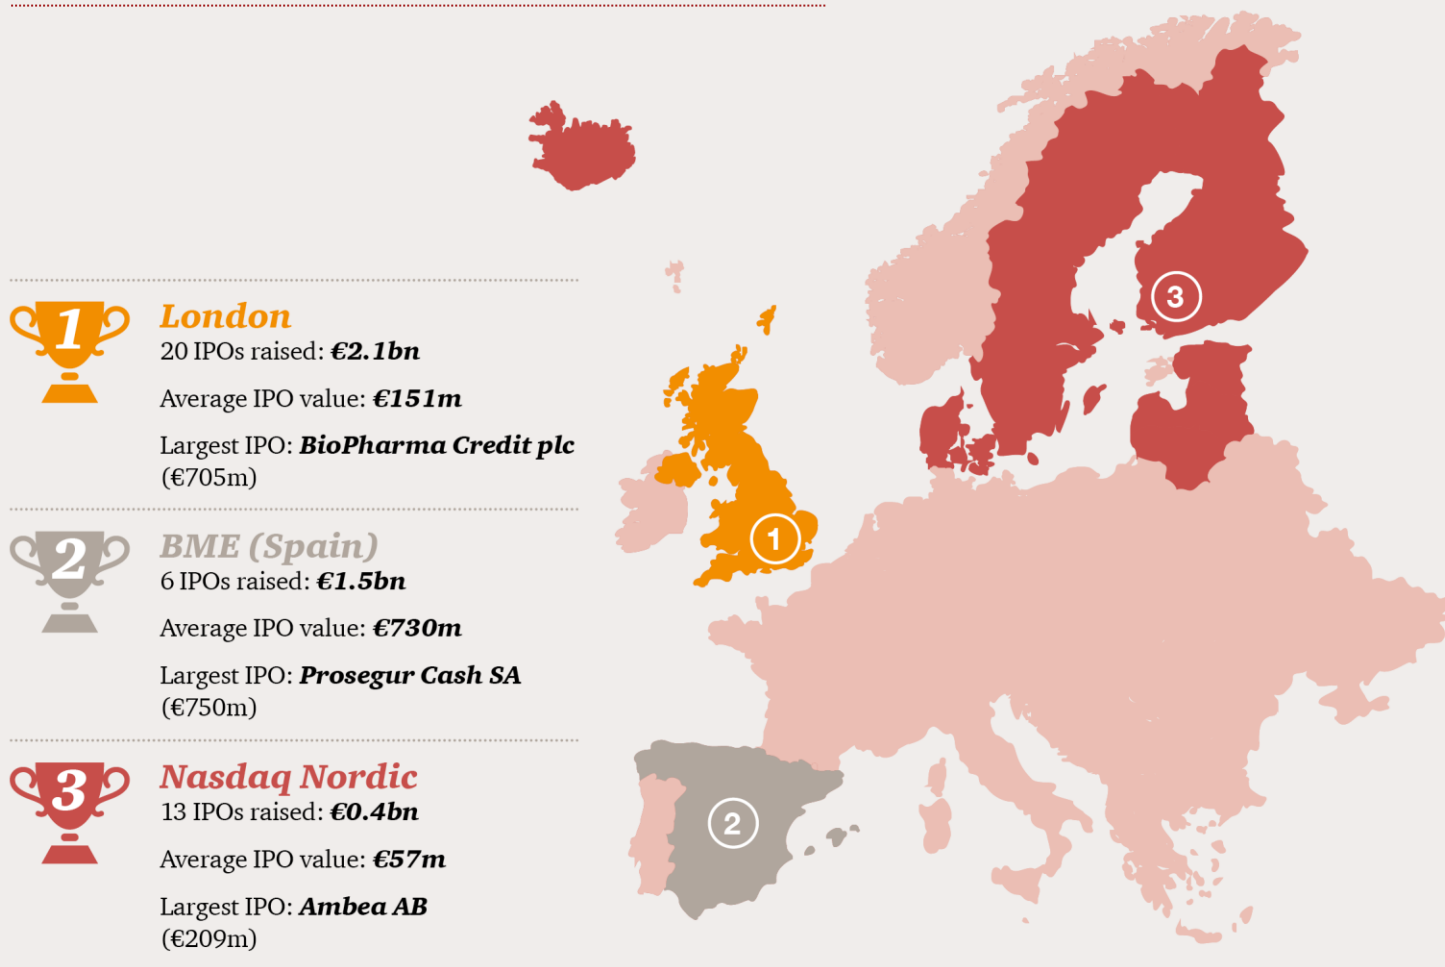

Mark Hughes

Partner, UK Capital Markets Leader at PwC

European IPO trends

London returned as the most active exchange in terms of both volumes and values, albeit at subdued levels of activity

“After a difficult 2016 in which market volatility dampened IPO activity, resulting from the political crisis which gripped Spain, 2017 has jump-started the Spanish IPO markets. Q1 saw the sizable IPOs of Prosegur Cash and Neinor Homes. The conditions for IPOs in Spain are great, volatility is low and the IBEXX has been on the rise since the start of the year. Should these conditions persist, the coming months will see more issuers coming to market.”

Rocio Fernandez Funcia
Partner, Spain Capital Markets Leader at PwC

European IPO trends

European IPO volumes were in line with Q1 2016, however, IPO values increased, supported by large IPOs in Spain and London

“While Q1 2016 was affected by political uncertainty and concerns over global economic growth, conditions this year have been more favourable for IPOs. Despite the lead up to the UK invoking Article 50 and the Dutch elections this quarter, the VSTOXX50 index, measuring market volatility, has remained low throughout the period. This combined with the low interest rate environment, and investors being keen to seek out and back IPOs with well supported compelling equity stories, means that a healthy pipeline of IPOs is beginning to emerge across the European continent.”

Lucy Tarleton
Director, UK Capital Markets Group at PwC

Market volatility

Volatility has remained well below the period's average and European indices have been approaching all-time highs
