00:09	Hong Kong GVs	For the past 10 days the Gateway to Asia, Hong Kong, has hosted the Volvo Ocean Race 2017-18, making its debut stopover in the race's 45-year history.
00:21	Sun Hung Kai/Scallywag arrives in Hong Kong at the end of leg 4	David Witt's Sun Hung Kai/Scallywag grabbed a historic win, first into Hong Kong in front of their home fans after a hard fought leg 4.
00:32	David Witt Skipper Sun Hung Kai/Scallywag	IV "The people on team Scallywag believed, and we keep believing, so very proud to be apart of the team, for S H. You know we're not pin up boys, were not perfect rock stars, with the right CV's, but we're a bunch of Scallywags, and we're loyal, we look after each other, and we never give up."
00:55	Hong Kong and Volvo Ocean Race Village GVs	Kai Tak, Hong Kong's former international runway, has been transformed to host the fortnight of activities, including interactive zones and concerts, drawing thousands of new race fans on a daily basis.
01:13	Images of the sailors parade and the fleet racing in the HGC In-Port Race	A major drawcard was the HGC In-Port Race, the action just meters away from the Kai Tak race village shores. In-Port series and overall race leaders, MAPFRE, were aiming to defend their position as king-pins, but on the day Dongfeng Race Team and team AkzoNobel battled for the victory, bow to bow for majority of the race.
01:42	Team AkzoNobel racing; tracker	With Nicolai Sehested steering, team AkzoNobel managed to edge ahead of Dongfeng Race Team late in the race, to take their first win of the In-Port series.
01: 52	Nicolai Sehested team AkzoNobel	IV "Yeah it's a great result for team AkzoNobel, we've been pushing hard for this, for a long time, it hasn't been an easy road to here, we had our struggles as everyone knows. But standing here with our first win, it's amazing for us, and we're happy."
02:06	Fleet racing in the Around Hong Kong Island Race; tracker	Sunday saw the teams line up once again, this time in a 30-mile race around Hong Kong Island, the points also counting towards the In-Port series. Soon after the start, MAPFRE capitalised on the smallest of gains, first to connect with a light vein of wind in the tricky conditions, establishing a thousand metre lead that they never relinquished. Dongfeng Race Team took second, overtaking MAPFRE, and making the Chinese entry the new overall leaders of the In-Port series.

02:43	Xabi Fernández Skipper MAPFRE	IV “We just finished the around Hong Kong island race, of course a very good result for us, with a good win today. It’s been a better race for us today, we did a clean start, and then after that just stretch, it was kind of a quiet race for us, so very happy with the result and now we’re again ready for the next leg.”
03:02	Guangzhou (China) GVs, fleet racing, Auckland (New Zealand) GVs	The fleet now leave Hong Kong, en route to China’s “Flower City”, Guangzhou, for a week of racing, before embarking on leg 6 to Auckland, New Zealand, on February the 7th.
